

Position: Assistant Professor of English

Location: Montreat, North Carolina

Start Date: August 2022

Summary: The English Department of Montreat College invites applications for a full-time Assistant Professor of English. The applicant should be well equipped to teach first- and second-year writing, literature surveys, and Business Communication courses. With our growing Honors program, opportunities for teaching Honors Composition may also be available. Our English Department emphasizes workshopping and conferencing, so applicants should be prepared to engage frequently with students both in and out of the classroom. The successful candidate will become part of a department dedicated to fostering students' growth in meaningful communication, critical analysis, and spiritual formation through the study of composition, literature, and creative writing. Montreat College is primarily a teaching institution with opportunities for research; the typical teaching load is 12 hours per semester.

Duties and Responsibilities: The candidate will be responsible for:

- Teaching Composition I & II —possibly a section or two in Honors-level Composition
- Teaching Literature Survey Courses: primarily World Literature with opportunities in British Lit I & II; American Lit I & II; Contemporary Lit; Literary Criticism, and other courses depending upon departmental needs and commensurate experience of candidate
- Teaching Business Communication for our growing Business Department
- Advising students and possibly supervising student research projects
- Participating in faculty committees
- Other duties as described in the Faculty Handbook

Qualifications: Successful candidate will affirm and support the Mission, Vision, and Statement of Faith of Montreat College as found here: <https://www.montreat.edu/about/mission/>

The successful candidate will also demonstrate support for Christian liberal arts education and the specific ability to integrate faith and Christian discipline in a compelling, thoughtful manner. Teaching excellence and a willingness to serve the broader college community through service and committee work are also expected.

Education/Experience: PhD. In English. College-level teaching experience preferred.

Supervision: Vice President for Academic Affairs

Application Requirements/How to Apply: Review of applicants will begin Fall 2021 and continue until the position is filled. Candidates are requested to send the following materials:
